“Finding A Path for Life:
The Quest for Goodness and Happiness”

Paul Wadell will discuss his recent sabbatical project, a book on Christian ethics that suggests the moral life is essentially a lifelong quest to discover where real happiness can be found. Paul will reflect on how our understanding of the landscape of morality shifts when we consider its fundamental business not to be the solving of confounding ethical dilemmas, but the forming of communities where people support one another in seeking the goods and practices in which genuine happiness consists.

Monday, March 6, 2006
