HEAD COACH A.J. AITKEN

A.J. Aitken is in his first season as the head coach of the St. Norbert College women's hockey program.

Aitken is a familiar face with St. Norbert hockey, serving 11 years during two stints as associate head coach for the Green Knights' men's program. Aitken also spent three seasons as the head coach of the Marian University men's program.

During his time with the St. Norbert men's program, Aitken helped the Green Knights to a 264-47-26 record, which included nine NCAA Division III Frozen Four appearances and three NCAA Division III national championships in 2008, 2011 and 2012. After nine seasons on the St. Norbert bench, Aitken fashioned a 39-37-4 mark during his three seasons with Marian from 2012-15 before returning to St. Norbert for two seasons. Following his second tenure at St. Norbert, Aitken coached the Green Bay Bobcats U14 girls and the Green Bay Hornets U16 girls.

"I'm extremely excited to be back at St. Norbert and want to thank (athletics director) Tim Bald for the opportunity to lead the women's hockey program," Aitken said. "I felt this was the perfect fit for me and am looking forward to not only coaching again, but to building a championship women's hockey team. It feels good to be back home at St. Norbert and I am ready to get started."

A Fort McMurray, Alberta, native, Aitken played for NCAA Division I Michigan Tech from 1997 to 2000. Aitken played in 140 games for the Huskies, scoring 14 goals and 17 assists for 31 points. He also served as the Huskies' team captain during his last two seasons. Aitken, a finance major at MTU, was also named Academic All-Western Collegiate Hockey Association twice.

Following his collegiate career, Aitken played with Macon and Memphis of the Central Hockey League. His stint in Memphis, from 2001 to 2003, resulted in being a part of two CHL championships.

The Northern Collegiate Hockey Association

Commissioner: Steve Larson
Director of Public Relations: Brian Monahan
Director of Sports Information: Chris Zills
www.nchahockey.org

Entering its 20th year of existence in 2019-20, the Northern Collegiate Hockey Association Women's Conference continues to provide opportunities for hundreds of student-athletes to compete in a nationally renowned NCAA Division III setting that is unparalleled in collegiate hockey on an annual basis. The experience and the memories that come with it - both on and off the ice - are a treasure for the student-athletes, coaches, families and friends who are fortunate enough to be part of the NCHA Conference that spans from Minnesota and Wisconsin through Illinois, Michigan and Indiana.

The 2017-18 season saw Aurora University, Northland College and Trine University begin membership.

The 2013-14 season started a new era, featuring changes in the conference membership and a pair of new trophies to compete for. Adrian College, Concordia University Wisconsin, Finlandia University, Lake Forest College, Marian University, St. Norbert College and the College of St. Scholastica will battle for the Slaats Cup, named after Lake Forest Director of Athletics Jackie Slaats - a major contributor to the formation of the Conference. The Slaats Cup will be awarded to the winner of the regular season playoffs, as will the NCHA's automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament. The winner of the regular season championship will be awarded the Kronschnabel Trophy, named after former NCHA Commissioner and Supervisor of Officials Bill Kronschnabel.

The structure and history of the original NCHA Men's Conference certainly provided a spring board for the creation of the Women's Conference in 2000. As girls' high school hockey was gaining in popularity in the Upper Midwest in the 1990s, particularly in Minnesota, and several colleges began sponsoring club and varsity teams, NCHA athletic directors began informal discussions in the later part of the decade about the idea of a women's league. In January of 2000, they set their sights on the 2000-01 season.

"We had to decide what we were going to do," said Lake Forest Athletic Director Jackie Slaats, who became a crucial organizer and leader in the formation. "We knew it was something we wanted, but there wasn't a protocol for how to make it happen."

Without a "How To" guide, the ADs held a special meeting on April 8, 2000 at the Arrowhead Lodge in Black River Falls, Wisconsin, the location of the NCHA annual spring meeting. After three hours of hammering out details, it was decided that Lake Forest, UW-Eau Claire, UW-River Falls, UW-Stevens Point and UW-Superior would be the five charter members of the league. The following day at the official spring meeting, which was led by then-NCHA President and Athletics Director at UW-Stevens Point Frank O'Brien, the plan was ratified and the league was born.

O'Brien provided support and guidance from his influential position at a pivotal time. To have had a President who was not fully committed to the idea of a women's league could have meant disaster. He remembers the excitement of being a part of such a historic movement and meeting the challenges of being new.

"I think the group as a whole (athletic directors) was the most important factor for the formation of the league," said O'Brien. "We had to come together to get it done. And that meant the men's teams as well.

They had to be on board in order to make the women's league happen."

With girls' hockey being such an up-and-coming sport, the founding of the NCHA Women's Division wasn't a gamble. But the founders still had to have a vision for the future: Three ... Five ... Ten years down the road. How fast might the sport grow and how would that affect the NCHA?

"We all knew the sport would grow, and we knew there would be expansion," said O'Brien. "But how much and by how many teams? No one knew that."

Did he ever imagine the league would eventually expand to eleven teams, which it did starting in the fall for the 2010-11 season with the additions of St. Norbert and St. Scholastica?

"No. No one thought it would ever grow this big, but that's evidence the sport is still growing."

The NCHA Women's Conference gives opportunities to nearly 200 student-athletes on its seven teams in four states. While the majority of roster spots were filled by Minnesotans in the first years of existence, there's much more diversity now in terms of where athletes come from. States like Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan are contributing significant numbers now, and a significant number of student-athletes come from outside the United States. Many proud Canadians play important roles now, as do players from Switzerland, Norway and Sweden, to name a few.

The level of talent has gone through a drastic makeover since 2000.

"Maybe one or two players from my first team could play on my team now," said UW-River Falls head coach Joe Cranston, who has coached at the western Wisconsin school since its inception. "And those would have been All-American-type players at the time." The number of collegiate hockey candidates has increased exponentially. Think the size of one players' bench versus the size of the entire ice sheet.

The NCHA Women's Conference has grown and evolved at a faster pace than its founders ever imagined. Finlandia University joined for the 2003-04 season and Concordia University Wisconsin did so in 2007-08. More recent expansion included Adrian College and Marian University in the 2009-10 season as well as St. Norbert and St. Scholastica in 2010-11.

Besides a history of excellent league competition, the NCHA has built a history of success on the national scene. The Women's Conference is no stranger to NCAA tournament success. The 2002-03 UW-River Falls Falcons were the first-ever NCHA team to earn a bid to the tournament. UW-Stevens Point qualified the following year, losing a heartbreaker 2-1 to Middlebury in the championship game. Of the 11 years an NCHA team has been in the NCAA tournament, a team has reached the Semifinals five times. The 2010-11 season marked the first time the Women's Conference had sent more than one team to the NCAA tournament, with Adrian earning the NCHA's automatic berth and UW-River Falls earning an at-large berth. The feat was done again in 2012-13, with St. Norbert winning the playoff title and UW-River Falls getting an at-large berth.

The NCHA Women's Conference originally played a four team playoff championship, held at the site of the highest seeded team. In 2007-08 the league had six teams qualify for the playoffs, with all games being played over three days at the high seed. In the 2009-10 season, the format called for eight teams qualifying for the playoffs. The quarterfinal round featured a 2+mini game format, while the semifinals and finals were single-elimination games played at the site of the highest remaining seed. The championship game has been decided by one goal eight times through the first 12 finals.
